ABSTRACT

Methods, systems and computer software products are provided for nucleic acid probe array design. In one preferred embodiment, target sequences are selected from various sources and processed for probe selection.

5